Cussins and Fearn Man Sells $94,825 Worth in Fifth Campaign

Charles Orr, only lately associated with the Cussins and Fearn Company here as assistant manager, today has a $100 War Bond dropped in his lap for selling more War Bonds than any one person in the 28 Cussins and Fearn stores during the Fifth War Loan Drive.

Orr sold $94,825 worth of bonds, leading the commercial sales group, the E bond sales group and the entire field of bond salesmen in the organization.

Harold McCord, manager of the store here, was out-sold by only a few bonds by Earl Beck of Marysville. McCord sold $12,300 in bonds.

The entire organization ended the drive with $301,650 in bond sales and purchases. The original budget of $300 per associate was more than tripled—the average was nearly $1000 per person. The organization was divided into six groups. Leaders and second-high salesmen in each group was awarded a $25 bond.

RAINFALL HERE .57 OF AN INCH

Series of Showers Bring Total Up Somewhat

During Tuesday and Wednesday rainfall in this city was .57 of an inch, of which .42 fell late Tuesday and the remainder late Wednesday.

Other parts of the county received as much or more during the two days, but much of the northern area escaped without more than a sprinkle during both days.

The rainfall has only partly broken the drought in the county, but has helped reduce the temperature materially.

Wednesday's peak was 85 degrees and the low point during the night was under 68.

The series of showers has brought temporary relief over a wide area, but a large territory remains still gripped by drought.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR DAVID O. BUCK

Funeral services for David O. Buck were held Wednesday at 2:30 P. M. at the Hook Funeral Home. Rev. Clarence H. Dett, in charge of the services, read a prepared memoir.

Mr. and Mrs. Laris Hard sang the three hymns, "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms," "Good Night and Good Morning," and "The Last Mile of the Way." Mrs. Jobe Rumer was at the piano.

Burial was made in the Bloomington Cemetery. Before the flag-draped casket was lowered into the grave, Robert Jefferson, past commander of the American Legion Post here, removed the flag and presented it to the family.

Pallbearers were David Tubbs, Carey Mann, John Callender, Bert Warner, William Peacock and Dawson Buck.

WORLD PRESS FREEDOM MOVEMENT IS STARTED

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—The United States and Great Britain are planning a conference here this fall on international communications and news exchange. It is regarded as an opening move toward this government's objective of gaining world-wide press freedom after the war.

BRITAIN STIRRED BY BUZZ BOMBS; USE AGAINST YANK IN FRANCE IS REVEALED

Minister Churchill's report announcing 2,750 of the one-ton bomb carriers had been launched against Britain—the attacks have grown gradually lighter.

Despite these respite, Londoners continue to bunk in shelters.

Coming from varying directions, the flying bombs brought death by ones and twos yesterday as houses and shops were demolished.

An increasing number of the robots have been coming from an easterly direction, indicating they were being launched from points along the coast of Belgium, some 150 miles from London. Some have been gliding slowly and silently down in recent days, in contrast to the deep plunge all the early ones took.

At least 100,000 persons, 60,000 of them children, have left London.

Night life has fallen off markedly. Twenty-one theaters have been closed, and bars no longer are crowded.

The London daily express said there had been many reports of "organized looting" after bomb hits. Looters face a possible death penalty.

Railway sleeping cars were introduced in America by Andrew Carnegie.

DREAM COMES TRUE Real Life Story Unfolded Here Dramatic As Fantastic Fiction

On the records in the county recorder's office here is this inconspicuous little item:

"Lizzie B. Evans, deceased, to Mary Evans Leary, lot 12 and 321 acres, Union township."

Behind that two-line notation is a story of real life as dramatic as the most fantastic fiction.

It is the story of a woman's dream of riches, of comfort and security in her declining years, come true.

Mrs. Mary Leary took leave from her work in Hot Springs, Ark., to come to her girlhood home in Washington C. H., in response to a call from her attorney last week. She was admittedly bewildered.

Wednesday afternoon she started back a woman of comparative wealth, the sole heir to an estate valued at approximately $50,000.

Mrs. Leary had not been in Washington C. H. where she was born more than 60 years ago for many years. She had been too busy to travel much. She had a steady position in one of the many apartment houses in the Ozark Mountain resort, but was a woman of moderate circumstances.

When she was being shown the property of her inheritance, she kept saying over and over again, "I just can't believe it... it's too good to be true."

But, that is the end of the story which really starts back in 1880 when Samuel Wilson, one of the town's influential residents of his time operated a tavern, as all small hotels and boarding houses of that day were called, on the north side of Court Street, between Fayette and Main Streets. It was a widely known and high class tavern for those days and "Sammy" Wilson, as he was generally known, prospered and accumulated a sizeable fortune.

The tavern stood on the lot now occupied by the Pavey Building which houses the Palace Theater, The First Federal Savings and Loan Co. office and the Nickl Shop. Parts of its original walls are still in the present building, it is said. Many young men who became notable successes were transient or regular boarders at that tavern, among them David Sinton, who founded a great fortune at Cincinnati.

Sammy Wilson died, leaving two daughters who inherited his property. One of them had married Newton Evans, one of the prominent young men of the town at that time, and she inherited half of the estate. To them was born a daughter, Lizzie B. Evans. She was a talented and popular young girl, but just as she approached young womanhood, she suffered a mental collapse and was committed to the state hospital for the insane. That was 57 years ago. She died there last May 22. But, during the more than half a century intervening, the property she had inherited from her mother had been accumulating and amounted to something like $50,000 under the wise management of her guardians.

To the present generations, she was unknown, too the older generations, she was only a vague memory.

What about the estate? Who were the heirs of Lizzie B. Evans? Who would inherit her estate?

These were perplexing questions, because there were no brothers nor sisters nor their descendants surviving. Her parents, and grandparents of course, had preceded her in death.

Miss Edith Gardner recalled that after the death of Newton Evans' wife (Sammy Wilson's daughter who originally inherited half of his estate) he married Miss Penelope Barrere of Hillsboro, and that two children were born to that marriage, a son and a daughter—but what had become of them, she did not know. She communicated with relatives in Hillsboro, who like Miss Gardner, were of the Barrere family line, and located one of those children in Hot Springs. It was Mrs. Leary. She notified her of Lizzie Evans' death and suggested that she might be an heir. She also notified Miss Evans' guardian, Forest Anders. From there on the amazing fiction-like drama began to unfold more rapidly.

Mrs. Leary said she did recall Lizzie Evans as the child of her father and his first wife, but she added, "I would be only a half-sister and not of the Wilson blood, so I could not be an heir." She did, however, agree that it might be well to have an attorney look into the matter.

Investigations by him disclosed that the Ohio Legislature amended the statute of descent about eight years ago by inserting in it these words: "... then to the brothers and sisters or their descendants, whether of the whole or of the half blood."

It was then ascertained that Mrs. Leary's brother had died several years ago in Indiana, leaving no children and, thus, Mrs. Leary became the sole heir of Lizzie B. Evans and entitled to all of her property.

Friendly and attractive, Mrs. Leary had no idea she would ever inherit that estate when she came here. She had not heard much about Lizzie Evans, whom she never had seen. She did not even know whether she was dead or alive, but supposed she had died long ago. She had never given her unknown half-sister's estate a thought; she did not even know that she had an estate.

The property Mrs. Leary inherited consists of three farms near Washington C. H. totalling about 320 acres, the large brick double residence on Market Street across the alley from the Court House lot and more than $12,000 in money and securities.

Mrs. Leary said she had no definite plan to move to Washington C. H. to spend her declining years in the town where she was born, but left when a girl.

Still unable to fully realize what had happened so unexpectedly she said again as she boarded the west bound train: "I just can't believe it."

The situation around Caen at the eastern end of the Normandy battlefield remained a stand-off, with the British capturing Malton, four miles southwest of Caen in the bitterly contested Orne-Odon triangle, but losing Colombelles, 3 1/2 miles northeast of Caen, in another of the bloody battles that have marked this sector.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 21st Army group headquarters announced the "bulk of German panzer strength, amounting to more than five divisions, still is concentrated in the Caen area."

(The Paris radio said 32 divisions had been concentrated in the 14-mile stretch from St. Lo to Caumont to the east, and a Nazi front line correspondent reported that the Allied artillery barrage was the heaviest yet encountered.)

Devastating Barrage The American attack on St. Lo again was preceded by a heavy crash of artillery upon German foxholes and hedgerow hiding places.

The attack was preceded by a "shock" type bombardment of several thousand rounds—the type of rolling barrage that has chained the Nazis in foxholes and left many weak and vomiting from fear and concussion.

Grey skies held down Allied air support in the first few hours. It was the third straight day that planes had been grounded until noon by bad weather.

Fighting in the St. Lo sector flamed up after comparative quiet along the front overnight.

Despite the dwindling fire power of the German 88s and lowering of the morale of Nazi troops under the battering of the overwhelming American artillery, the enemy evidently was preparing to defend the ruins of St. Lo.

Every hour gained in this manner enabled Hitler's thinly stretched forces to improve fortifications to their rear.

Americans thrusting along the road below Carentan ran into hardening resistance, but penetrated the Du Hommet forest seven miles due south of Carentan and a like distance northwest of St. Lo.

When they pressed with ready bayonets through the twilight recesses of this great wood they found Nazi troops in one area already had fled, leaving behind supplies and equipment of all kinds.

Barrage Dazes Germans The German radio last night reported the Allied big push in Normandy was underway with a mighty artillery barrage and "a strategy utterly new in the midst of warfare."

"Roads, fields, villages and towns, everything even in the far rear has been transformed into a vast bomb and shell cratered area of devastation," said Berlin. "Our men, grim, sweaty and smothered in dust, are fighting back with all they have to hold off infiltrating enemy groups."

A German war correspondent broadcast that the "Allies in Normandy are presenting an utterly new strategy which neither the German high command nor any other command ever had to cope with."

"Hitherto," he said, "our supreme command has been able to deploy, concentrate, and send up reinforcements on relatively secure lines. But now all military rules have gone by the board."

"Our hinterland is under perpetual bombardment by enemy air forces and artillery, even naval guns, of an intensity never before matched or even dreamed of."

"Under such conditions no German concentrations could be built up within striking distance of the front. We couldn't use the highways and railways we had counted on. As even the smallest paths and byways are bombarded, the German high command is ab-staining from the concentration of striking forces behind the front and is sending columns along the roads. Our operational reserves are moving invisibly by devious ways to reach the critical points."

"By day our forces go to death—by night they move."

A front line dispatch quoted refugees as saying the Germans were bracing the one undamaged building in St. Lo, apparently preparing to make a stand in the rubble.

This report coincided with a German announcement that the new commander in the west, Marshal Guenther von Kluge had inspected the channel battle area, possibly with a view to applying some of his delaying tactics used in Russia. He bears the reputation as Germany's foremost defensive strategist.

St. Lo, fortified by Charlemagne, has been involved in great struggles many times, pillaged by Normans, taken and retaken by the British in the Middle Ages, and stormed in wars between the Catholics and Protestants.

It dominates all the main roads in central Normandy and its capture, coupled with pressure to the west, would be calculated to force the Germans to withdraw completely from the Cherbourg peninsula.

To the west, the Americans cleared the Germans out of the Laland Manduit coastal area southwest of La Haye du Puits and northwest of Lessay.

Northeast of Periers and northwest of St. Lo, the Germans were driven out of part of the Bois du Hommet, a thick wood concealing supply dumps.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

With due caution one records that catastrophe is trading on the heels of the Hitlerian armies which are being rolled back with heavy loss of life and material by a multiple Red offensive which is developing the greatest striking power ever let loose in such an operation.

The Nazis will have to be mighty lucky to effect an orderly retreat to new defenses. We've seen their generalship achieve many masterly withdrawals, and would be a serious mistake to underestimate German resourcefulness in emergencies. However, Hitler no longer has the man-power or equipment to enable him to manipulate his defenses as he has in the past.

Berlin military spokesmen for several days have been preparing the German public for a great withdrawal on the Eastern Front. While not avoiding the seriousness of the situation, they've advertised this as part of a revised strategy.

It's represented that this re-alignment will permit of the transfer of Nazi forces from the Eastern Front to the Western theater for a major assault on the Allies in Normandy. The idea is to administer a quick, decisive defeat on the Western Allies and then whip back to the Russian front in time to protect the eastern frontiers of the Reich.

Well, as the stage magician would say, it's a good trick if they do it—and it's a good trick if they don't. It's a strategy of desperation. But the Hitlerites are on desperate straits.

One of the astonishing aspects of the Russian offensive is that the Red armies have been averaging more than ten miles a day in vital sectors, with heavy fighting, for a score of ways without rest. Whether they can continue much longer without a breather remains to be seen, but the launching of their new Latvian drive doesn't look much like a pause. Their stamina is amazing.

If they do halt it may give the Nazis a chance to pull up their socks a bit. But if the Red machine keeps on rolling as it's going now, Hitler may have to abandon the Baltic States and East Prussia on the run. The Nazi command has anticipated this contingency by evacuation of German Nationals from some areas. The way the signs read how the enemy will be compelled to fall back at least as far as the line of the Vistula in the heart of Poland.

Hitler's idea of administering a decisive defeat on the invading Allies in Normandy comes a month late. If he was going to try that game he should have seen to it that Marshal Rommel had his way. The marshal wanted to fling a great attack at the Allies when they were struggling to establish beach-heads.

Now, as General Montgomery has pointed out with so much evident satisfaction, the Allies are firmly and permanently established. When the Germans make their long promised major counter-attack (and if they don't take the initiative, the Allies will) they will be smashing their heads against a solid wall. However, the London Daily Mail published a report that the German supreme staff, headed by Field Marshal Keriell, has been transferred to France from Russia, and if that's true it looks like business.

No wonder the German spokesmen are emphasizing the gravity of the Nazi position. They admit freely that they are on the defensive on all three fronts.

SEND 23 MORE FAYETTE COUNTY MEN TO SERVICE

All Go To Fort Hayes Early Thursday Morning By Bus

Another sizeable contingent of Fayette County registrants was sent to Fort Hayes induction center, Thursday, where they will be forwarded to various training camps for the different branches of service.

Part of the men will be assigned to the Navy and the remainder to the Army.

The group assembled at Selective Service Headquarters early Thursday morning, and left around 8:30 A. M. Homer Langdon McCoy was the leader.

It is expected that a large portion of the men will be assigned to naval training due to the heavy demand for naval personnel to man the great fleet of new boats built.

Eleven of those in the contingent were volunteers, and for the most part all were very young men, although some of the volunteers were up to 36 years of age.

Of married men included in the list, only two or three among the volunteers have children.

Following is the list of men sent Thursday.

20 FEET BLOWN OFF OF HILL BY YANKS

That Was Only Way To Get To Nazis Holed Up in It

ATOP HILL 192 OVERLOOKING ST. LO, July 13—(P)—“The Germans kept a permanent garrison here and had been working on the defenses for a year,” said Staff Sgt. Frank Hubbard of Hamilton, Ohio, who went through the stiffest part of the fighting as the Americans slept the sleep of exhaustion in enemy positions.

American troops had been trying to take the natural defense positions here since June 18, and succeeded only after engineers had infiltrated the lines, mapped the defenses and literally “knocked twenty feet off the crest of the hill,” as one engineer said.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR THOMAS J. ELLIOTT

Funeral services for Thomas J. Elliott were held Wednesday at 3 P. M. at the Klever Funeral Home, Rev. Leslie Green, pastor of the Laurelville United Brethren Church, was in charge of the services.

An old family friend, Rev. Green paid a personal tribute, Paul Fitzwater sang “Rock of Ages” and “Lead Kindly Light” at the largely attended service.

Burial was made in the family lot of the Washington C. H. Cemetery. Pallbearers were Warren, Richard and Paul Elliott; Ralph and Forest Lightle and Calvin Knisley.

UNEMPLOYMENT PAYMENTS NOT MADE IN JUNE

This City One of Four in Ohio Where Everyone Had a Job

Washington C. H., Wooster, Ravenna and Ashtabula were the only four cities in Ohio where no compensation was paid for unemployment during the month of June.

It was the second month that no compensation was paid here as result of the demand for labor which absorbed all available workers in all lines and gave no excuse for unemployment compensation.

Payments in the state at large during June dropped to $90,049, lowest monthly total this year, Charles H. Jones, administrator of the Ohio bureau, has announced. That amount was 15 percent lower than May's total payments.

An average of 1,411 unemployed persons per week received benefits throughout the state during the month with payments covering 6,292 weeks of unemployment. Reflecting new unemployment during the month, only 2,199 new claims for unemployment compensation were filed with BUC offices, a decrease of 17 percent from May, Jones added.

Benefit payments in Ohio during the first six months of this year are about one third lower than for the comparable period of last year. So far during 1944 there has been $767,888 paid in unemployment compensation in Ohio. During the first six months of 1943 payments totaled $1,101,750.

White Collar Workers Plan Protest to City

CLEVELAND, July 13—(P)—Plans for a strike of more than 500 municipal white collar workers next Monday were completed today with distribution of printed instructions to city hall employees, Sam Perri, business representative of the AFL state, county and municipal employees union, reported.

“Many of our members are still being paid the exact amount that they received as long ago as 1935,” Perri declared. He emphasized that nurses and food inspectors in the health department, as well as safety department employees and two telephone operators, were to remain on the job because “this is not a strike against the public but rather attitude being displayed by members of the administration family.”

Campaign Style

It may be that Candidate Dewey has started a new pattern of campaign oratory. His acceptance speech was not at all in the familiar style that Americans have had dinned into their ears for generations. It was not "oratorical" in the usual acceptance of that term. There was no poetry about it, and no sentimentalism, and not much of what is ordinarily called eloquence. But sentences were short and clear, and every word counted. It was a good business man's talk, heightened by complete self-possession and an unusually good speaking voice. And there was no doubt that every statement went home to the mind of the average American with an ordinary education, who reads the newspapers.

This might start a wave of imitation, resulting in a new and more effective campaign oratory. There is obviously no need of the "hollering" and the long sentences, elaborate phraseology and artificial emotion, that have long been considered an essential part of campaign oratory. Few campaigners have the voice, and the vocal training, that Mr. Dewey possesses, but many could improve their oratorical effectiveness by cultivation of some of the other qualities.

An American Giant

There is a tradition that little men are inclined to be bright, and big men to be dull. This belief seems invalid in the case of Clifford M. Thompson of Milwaukee, just admitted to the bar. At least the superficial facts suggest a successful career for him.

This man is a veritable giant, right out of the fairy tale books, and the tallest man in the United States. He stands eight feet and seven inches high and weighs 460 pounds. He seems to deviate from the traditional trend of giants, by being nimble in both body and mind. He is good in professional basketball, even though opponents have accused him of merely standing still in the middle of the floor while reaching over and dropping the ball into the pocket. He has also been an advertising man, which profession is no haven for dummies.

Anyway it should be interesting to watch this giant's legal career. If he lacks timidity and takes moral advantage of his towering height, he should go far in his profession. When a man of his endowment leans over and tells the judge and jury, they should stay told.

Military Surplus

A business advisory committee has recommended that surplus American war supplies left overseas when the war ends be sold within two years through a government merchandising corporation. This committee consists of H. D. Bennett of Toledo Scale Co., T. V. Houser of Sears Roebuck and Co., Clark Minor of International General Electric Co., and J. A. Donaldson of Butler Brothers.

There has been some fear that the surplus supplies might interfere with normal export trade after the war. But the committee thinks the devastation is so great that there should be little difficulty disposing of our left-over industrial equipment without serious effect. "Indeed," it says, "the sooner the devastated areas can begin to produce, the sooner will they cease to be

A Difficult Problem Gets Ironed Out

WASHINGTON.—Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, assistant chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has learned how to meet the wartime manpower shortage.

Recently, when she could not get service at a small-town hotel, she recalls, she pressed herself in sections.

She found the hotel linen room and an iron, took off her skirt and pressed that. She put it back on. She took off her blouse, keeping on her jacket while she pressed that. She put on her blouse while she pressed the jacket.

Mrs. Tillett says that when she finished she was ready to address a large group of clubwomen.

candidates for relief, and the sooner they will develop into potential customers for imported goods in general.

Good prices ought to be obtained, adds the committee. Where prices offered appear poor, it might be a good idea to make the sale of surplus property conditional upon purchase from this country of other new equipment.

It is necessary to build up surpluses in order to be sure there will be no lack on fighting fronts, but their disposal always offers ticklish problems. It does look, however, as if the holes made by war were so great that all our extras could not begin to fill them. Normal export trade is expected to be large.

Guns or Butter

Ambassador Morgenstierne of Norway has a formula for treatment of the Germans when they have been thoroughly beaten. "Let them have butter," he says, "but no guns."

Most Americans, as they feel at present, would not be very enthusiastic even about the butter, probably preferring to handle that factor as an incentive to good behavior in the future. Remembrance of the physical cruelty and starvation inflicted by Nazi authorities on so many million people, apparently with the approval of the German nation, may make it hard for their victims to deal generously with them for many years.

With nations as with individuals, "the evil that men do lives after them." And it will take, perhaps, more than a generation for the evil they have done to be forgotten or forgiven.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Political observers are undecided whether the close vote in the North Dakota Republican primary was "because of" or "in spite of" the pre-Pearl Harbor isolationist views of Senator Gerald P. Nye, who appears to have been renominated for another term.

On the basis of an unofficial count, Nye has been holding the narrowest of margins over his rival, Lynn U. Stambaugh, Fargo attorney and former national commander of the American Legion, and it may be necessary for the state board to make an official count Aug. 1 to determine the winner.

Two other senators with views somewhat similar to those of Nye—D. Worth Clark (D-Idaho) and Rufus Holman (R-Dre.)—have lost out in primary elections, and assessors of national trends were intently watching North Dakota.

Stambaugh focused his campaign on Nye's record views on foreign affairs.

strength was a surprise. The consensus had been that the fight would be between Nye and Rep. Usher L. Burdick, who was backed by the Nonpartisan League, of which Sen. William Langer is the leader.

The idea was passed around and quite generally accepted that a vote for Stambaugh—who ran independently—was a wasted vote and he would end up in third place. Many now believe that if the voters had thought Stambaugh had had a chance he would have come home in front.

Nye, with 19 years of service in the Senate, is ranking Republican member of the powerful Senate appropriations committee and he highlighted his campaign with the fact that he would become chairman if the Republicans win Senate control. The Democratic candidate is Gov. John Moses, now serving out his third term.

In a traditionally Republican state, Moses has been easily elected to the governorship each time with the aid of a healthy segment of Republican votes—generally the anti-Langer, or regular Republican, faction. The purely Democratic vote itself is small in the state.

Whether Moses will receive his section of Republican backing in the fall election is hard to forecast since Democrats have been sent to Congress only in rare cases by North Dakota and this is a presidential election year.

Moses is expected to pick up where Stambaugh left off in attacking Nye's record of opposition to President Roosevelt's foreign policy.

Nye's total vote, even when final figures are given out by the state canvassing board, will be somewhat under 40 per cent of the votes cast, and Moses's aim will be to acquire a substantial part of the opposition vote in addition to the minor Democratic vote.

An Annual Invasion

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

ABOUT A month from now over most parts of the United States an invading army of pollens will strike giving you and discomfort to about a tenth of the population.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The date of this invasion will be no surprise. It has happened regularly for as many years back as the oldest inhabitant can count.

Is there any defense that can be made against it? Well, that is a real puzzle to most of the sufferers as they know only too well.

The students of Hay Fever have listed a good many plants which can cause this cussed malady, but for all but the rare cases the offender for the fall type of Hay Fever is the ragweed. It is the one which begins to cast its light yellow pollen grains in the air on August 14th at 6 a.m. in the morning.

They are light enough to float as high as seven stepples and a steady wind will carry them hundreds of miles.

Change of Climate

One answer to the problem of how to repel this invasion is climate. In general the mountains and the seashore and the Northern Lakes and Canada are safe refuges for the afflicted. California and the Pacific Coast generally are pretty safe. They claim to have some Hay Fever occasionally in California, but it is only Hay Fever. It is nothing like the hay fever of the Mississippi Valley and the Middle West.

Another answer which I advocated for many years is to cut ragweed plants about this time of year. I have been argued down on it from communities where they have tried it but I still am not convinced because I do not believe it has ever been given a thorough trial. Of course it is impossible this year, but some day we might give the Japanese internees a whirl at it.

Lastly, there is the method of immunization by pollen vaccines.

This has gone through various stages of opinion among the experts. First it was advocated that the course of increasingly strong suspensions of the pollen be given, starting several months before the expected seasonal attack. All sorts of exaggerated claims were made for this by the optimists among the allergists, but in general it seemed to fail in about 90 per cent of cases.

Coseasonal Vaccinations

Then a coseasonal set of vaccinations was advocated, beginning the course of hypodermic injections a month or a week before, or even right with, the onset of symptoms. This didn't seem to be very logical, but it worked in practice better than the long pre-seasonal vaccinations.

The theory that emerged from these experiences, which is the theory now held, is that it is possible to produce immunity to Hay Fever infestation, but that the immunity is very short lived. The immunity acquired by the pre-seasonal shots wore out before the Hay Fever season began. It is considered that the best hope consists of all year round immunization carried out for several years which it is said results in a permanent state of relief.

More practical and in line with this same kind of theory is the "rush desensitization" method of Freeman. This attempts to build up rapid immunity just before and during the early days of the season by injections given at very brief intervals. The vaccines can be given by this "rush" method by mouth. It seems the most helpful of the practical methods suggested.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. R.:—What does a basal metabolism test of the thyroid gland determine? Is it a reliable test?

Answer: The basal metabolism test measures the amount of oxygen used by the body in a given time at rest. It measures thyroid activity because the thyroid governs the consumption of oxygen. It is a very reliable test.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Norman, attractive widow, lived chiefly for her son, Dr. Matthew Norman. The income from her smart decorating shop had seen him through college and would aid in establishing his practice. She was overjoyed when lovely Judith Lambert, daughter of an old friend now living in California, dropped in for a visit. Judith confessed Matthew used to be her secret love—but he didn't know I existed. En route to Maine for the summer, Judith promised to stop off on her way home in the fall. As Mary awaited dinner with Lynn Mortimer, lawyer, she indulged in a little mental matchmaking about Judith and her son. For years Lynn has been in love with Mary, but his wife, a mental patient was still living. Mary was stunned when a telegram from Matthew announced his marriage to Irene Murray, a nurse. She had met Irene but never suspected a romance. Early next morning Matthew phoned to ask if Irene might stay with Mary while he is on duty at the hospital. Mary found her daughter-in-law charming as the latter shyly explained their hasty marriage—"Matthew simply would not wait." She tells Mary she will continue at the hospital until Matthew opens his own office in the fall. Mary offers to help them find an apartment, although she had hoped they would live with her.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Mary's brows were drawn. "I don't see why you wish to go on working."

"I want to help," explained Irene. "That's as much part of my job as anything else, don't you think? After Matthew leaves the hospital, I thought it would be a good idea if I went on the registry. I can earn money that way. But he doesn't want me to; he would rather I helped him in the office."

Mary said, "So it's all decided between you?" She added before the other girl could speak, "I know about what a charge nurse is paid, and (you will forgive me when I say) it isn't worth your working all day and going home tired and worn out, when I can so easily—"

Irene cut in hastily. "It isn't the money; I know how little that is... it wouldn't do more than pay the rent of a tiny place, perhaps not even that. But I—I'd like to be near him," she said, "I'd see him, every day. I'd be in touch..."

"I see," said Mary, "if you insist. I do understand." She rose and, as Irene came to her feet, she took her hands and pulled her close and kissed her. "You'll be a wonderful wife, Irene."

She followed her mother-in-law into Matthew's room. It was severe and masculine. It had twin beds, and a tall-boy and a dresser.

Mary explained, "We've lived here, you see, ever since Matthew was in medical school. He was always bringing some boy or other home with him, hence the amount of space." She added, "I'd planned to refurbish it for you."

Irene said shyly, "Would you help me with the apartment? I have a little money saved; what was left of my inheritance after I finished training. I thought I'd use that. I wish it was more," she added, "but it wouldn't stretch to Matthew's office too."

"That's my problem," said Mary, smiling, "don't worry about it. Have you any idea where you want to live?"

"Near the office of course," answered Irene promptly, "within walking distance, that is."

"Then," said Mary, "after luncheon we'll talk about it, and tomorrow perhaps we can start looking."

She thought, I can become very fond of this girl. She did not think, I can look upon this girl as my daughter. She didn't know anything about having daughters or how one felt about them. She had a son.

At luncheon, with Kate fussing over them and Nellie turning herself inside out to meet the bride's approval, Irene said sturdily: "You mustn't think for a moment that I'd ever in any way come between you and Matthew. You see, I've known him for only two years and I didn't know he cared about me, not really I mean, until—" she stopped and thought—"three weeks ago. The night he brought me home to dinner and then took me here. You've had him for twenty-seven years and you get along so well."

Mary remarked quietly: "When women do not get along with the sons' wives, it is because I think one of them does not understand her particular position. I'm Matthew's mother, Irene, and you're his wife. We don't have to think of taking anything away from each other, or even sharing. We have each our own job, haven't we? And we have each of us what belongs to us."

"Yes," agreed Irene, and bent her fair head slightly, "that's the way I feel. I'll remember you said that."

Mary's shop was on Madison Avenue, and her window dressing was a masterpiece of restraint... displaying, as it did, a magnificent old French mirror over a charming, delicate poufouse, its painted pastel flowers, rose and mauve, on a pale-green background, and one lovely modern chair with a length row perhaps we can start looking."

She thought, I can become very fond of this girl. She did not think, I can look upon this girl as my daughter. She didn't know anything about having daughters or how one felt about them. She had a son.

At luncheon, with Kate fussing over them and Nellie turning herself inside out to meet the bride's approval, Irene said sturdily: "You mustn't think for a moment that I'd ever in any way come between you and Matthew. You see, I've known him for only two years and I didn't know he cared about me, not really I mean, until—" she stopped and thought—"three weeks ago. The night he brought me home to dinner and then took me here. You've had him for twenty-seven years and you get along so well."

Mary remarked quietly: "When women do not get along with the

The saleswoman, she noticed, was furnished as an apartment living room might have been, the best of Mary's antique pieces properly displayed, yet warmly as if the room were lived in. A handsome middle-aged woman rose from behind a desk in a far corner and approached her, smiling. She was fashionably thin, and very chic in a black frock with a scarlet sash. A younger woman, very pretty, came in for a moment, murmured something and vanished.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Judge, I've had a lot of calls for that book you took out last week... 'Tell the Boys Back Home.' How did you like it?"

"Fine, Sarah, fine... it's just the kind of book I like to get hold of... I enjoyed every word of it. Wish I could have been along with the author myself... actually living with the men right on the fighting fronts. He got mighty close to them and they certainly opened up their minds and their hearts to him."

"There were lots of new things in the book I hadn't seen in any other reports from front-line writers. But there was one question the men asked the author that I have seen time and time again in these stories. That was 'Are you going to put prohibition over on our soldiers again... and without getting our vote?'"

"I noticed that, too, Judge, and I think the least we can do for those fighting men who are doing so much for us is to respect their wishes on that subject."

Norma Reynolds Bates Weds Bruce A. Steadman Here At Presbyterian Church

Open Church Ceremony Wednesday
Evening at Five-thirty O'clock;
Number of People Attend

As the hands of the clock reached five-thirty Wednesday evening, July twelfth, in the First Presbyterian Church, here, Miss Norma Reynolds Bates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert N. Bates of Paint Street, became the bride of Bruce A. Steadman, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Steadman of Pinetops, N. C.

The bride approached the altar of the church on the arm of her father, following a short program of appropriate nuptial organ and vocal music. Mrs. Marian Gage played at the organ "Berceuse," "Intermezzo," "Serenade," and "Claire de Lune." Miss Jean Armstrong, cousin of the bride beautifully sang "Because" and "I Love Thee."

The altar of the church was handsomely decorated for this occasion, with two floor standards of white gladioli, flanked on each side by two seven-branch candelabras. In these white tapers burned softly throughout the service.

For her marriage, the bride chose a gown of white marquisette over taffeta, fashioned with a basque waist and full skirt. The bodice of the gown was fashioned with a bertha-effect of Chantilly lace, as was also her shoulder length veil, which was topped with a "Mary, Queen of Scots" brim. She wore matching lace mitts and carried a colonial bouquet centered with a white orchid. Pinned to the bodice of her gown was a pearl and sapphire brooch, a gift of the bridegroom. The bride also carried a handmade Battenberg handkerchief, carried by a great-aunt at her wedding 55 years ago.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Charles C. Powell, of Pinetops, N. C., who was wearing an Ashes of Roses basque satin waist with matching net skirt. She wore a half Dutch bonnet of matching net and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses.

Performing the duties of best man was Mr. J. C. Armstrong of Columbia, Tenn., and usher was Mr. Edwin McCoy of this city.

For her daughter's marriage, Mrs. Bates chose a gray crepe frock and pink camellias. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Steadman, wore an ice-blue crepe frock with a corsage of white gardenias. Immediately following the open church ceremony, which a number of out-of-town guests attended, the bridal party and a number of guests went to the Washington Country Club where the reception was held.

Centering the bride's table, was a large three tiered wedding cake. A pink and green color scheme was carried out in the appointments and decorations. Presiding at the coffee urn was Miss Jane Landrum of this city, who was assisted by Miss Judith Paul. White gladioli was placed at points of vantage in the club lounge.

When the bride and bridegroom

Miss Norma West Is Hostess at 3-Table Bridge

Miss Norma Jean West entertained her three-table bridge club at the home of her sister, Mrs. Gene Travis on Market Street, and as the members assembled they were seated at three small tables for a dessert course serving by the gracious young hostess. Centering each of the tables, were bud vases, and on each mantle in the double living room were crystal vase arrangements of cut flowers, flanked by tall crystal candelabras filled with white tapers.

The remainder of the evening was spent in playing bridge with first prize going to Miss Helen Willis and consolation to Mrs. Gene Travis.

Those present were Mrs. Paul Schorr, Miss Kay Wilson, Miss Helen Willis, Miss Betty Lucas, Miss Sarah Lyon, Miss Laura Schadel, Mrs. Edward Hoskins, Mrs. Richard Smith, Miss Freida Fults, Mrs. Gene Travis and Miss Phyllis Pittenger.

Texas; Will Write Preface
As Well

Miss Mary Elizabeth Wood, WHS Spanish teacher and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wood, 809 North North Street, has chosen translation and study of a photostatic copy of an old Mexican manuscript as her summer project at the Inter-American Workshop at Texas State College for Women at Denton, Texas.

The manuscript is of a Christmas play or "pastorela" which is presented annually in Edinburg, a Texas border town. Miss Wood is studying the manuscript for ambiguous word-forms and after she has completed her study, will write a preface and vocabulary for it. She is being directed in her work by Miss Rebecca Switzer, who is in charge of the Workshop as director of foreign languages at the college.

In the Workshop, group conferences are held for the discussion of mutual problems, for exchange of ideas, and for general discussion of teaching methods, plans, and bibliographical material.

Speakers and consultants appear frequently at the Workshop, sent through the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, Washington, D. C., sponsors of the Workshop.

Miss Wood, in addition to her Workshop project, is taking an advanced course in the study of Spanish literature. Last summer she attended the T. S. C. W. Summer School of Spanish in Saltillo, Mexico, and took a special course in Mexican civilization, taught by Senor Gonzalez Trevino.

As instructor in Spanish in the Washington High School, Miss Wood is also sponsor of the Spanish Club; of the National Honor Society, and of the "Lions Roar," school paper. She was graduated from Denison University in 1938, and since then has spent summers studying at Middlebury French School, Middlebury, Vermont, and at Wilmington College.

SECOND SUMMER TERM OPENS SOON

Wilmington College Ready on July 17

The second summer term at Wilmington College will begin Monday with registration for new students on Monday and first classes on Tuesday, July 18.

A special feature of the second term will be a week's lecture course to be given by Dr. D. Elton Trueblood, professor of philosophy at Stanford University and one of the most eminent Quakers in America. New instructors will be Dr. Charles Gilbert, Allegheny College, in social science; Burritt M. Hiatt, recently interned in Germany as a representative of the American Friends Service Committee in philosophy and literature; and Miss Dorothy Fornia, Ohio State University, in physical education. A special course in vocational guidance will be offered for public school teachers.

Students from Fayette County who have been attending the first term are: Lena Fry, Mt. Sterling, R. F. D.; Margaret Knedler, Leesburg, R. F. D.; Everett Minton, Washington C. H.; Mary Jeanne Schwaigert, Washington C. H.

California produces 90 per cent of the U. S. apricot crop.

Washington C. H. Veteran Of Jap War Is Instructor

DEATH CHEATED MANY TIMES AS BOMBER GUNNER

T/Sgt. Gordon Grimm Back in U. S. After Dangerous Service in Far East

T/Sgt. Gordon L. Grimm, top turret gunner and engineer in a Liberator bomber in 37 missions with a total of 355 combat hours, is now an instructor in instrument repair in the 4515 Base Unit Staff School at Robins Field, Ga., headquarters of Warner Robins Air Service Command, a branch of the Army Air Forces responsible for the maintenance, repair and supply of the Army's combat planes the world over.

Sgt. Grimm, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Grimm, 829 East Market Street, is a good instructor, the school officers say. When he explains the importance of instruments he remembers the time that he had to help bring a B-24 down without instruments, after one pilot had been killed and the other was seriously injured. This veteran of two years service in the China-Burma-India theater and of the African campaign teaches what he has learned from experience as well as knowledge obtained in specialist courses in instrument and electrical accessories and carburetors which he attended before going overseas.

"Our squadron flew one of the longest bombing missions made in the CBI area," Sgt. Grimm said. "It was approximately 3,000 miles round trip, from Calcutta, India, to Bangkok, Siam and back."

This mission and another to Rangoon to blast Jap shipping and docks, plus the completion of 200 hours of combat flying won him the Distinguished Flying Cross.

"On one mission we sank three Jap ships, two of them troop transports. And our plane got the first," Sgt. Grimm said. "We scored three direct hits and the ship exploded. It just came apart and sank in a few minutes. Then the sea was black with Japs."

In addition to the Flying Cross, Sgt. Grimm has the Air Medal with one cluster, two Presidential citations, the European and Asiatic campaign ribbons and several lesser awards.

He enlisted in the Army in 1939 after being employed for six years by Douglas Aircraft at Santa Monica, Calif. After he had completed his training he was sent to Hawaii. On December 6, 1941 he was crossing the equator headed for the Philippines. When news of Pearl Harbor came the ship went into the Fiji Islands and then made its way to Brisbane, Australia, where his squadron assembled P-40 planes.

In February 1942 the squadron embarked again, this time for India. His ship was accompanied by two carriers, both of which were sunk by enemy action but his ship escaped and docked at Karachi, India. From India the outfit was ordered to Egypt and the Libyan campaign. While on leave Sgt. Grimm visited Jerusalem, the Sea of Galilee and had a swim at Tel Aviv. He took hundreds of pictures of the Holy Land which are his most highly prized souvenirs.

The squadron was evacuated from Africa and Sgt. Grimm was flown back to India. Here, he and his friend, Sgt. John Lisack, were given an opportunity to transfer to flight engineering. Lisack stayed with his job while Grimm made the transfer.

Gordon Grimm

Trying to forget Zeros and ack ack, T-Sgt. Gordon L. Grimm, Washington C. H. veteran of the China-Burma-India theater of the Libyan campaign in Egypt, and former top turret gunner of a B-24 heavy bomber, finds his new job as instrument repair instructor at Robins Field, Georgia, home of Warner Robins Air Service Command, a soothing diversion compared to blasting Zeros and dodging ack ack. He is shown working on a jeweler's lathe in the Air Service Command School—WRASC Photo.

"Most missions were flown at night from a base near Calcutta. Our flights were small, usually from three to 25 bombers with little or no fighter escort. The problem was to dodge ack ack and searchlights and reach our target," Sgt. Grimm said.

"On the Rangoon mission we were jumped by a large number of Zeros. One hydraulic system was shot out, our brakes useless. Instruments were not working. One pilot was dead and the other wounded. That's the time I helped bring the ship down and believe me we came in on a prayer. Of six bombers on that mission, ours was the only one that got back."

"I had another close call. The metal foot rest in my gun turret was shot out and a piece of plexiglass over my head was chipped, but they didn't touch me."

After spending two months in Chungking instructing Chinese ground crews, Sgt. Grimm was flown back to the United States, landing at Miami.

He visited his wife and his parents then was assigned to Robins Field. There he reported to the Base Unit Staff School and the first thing he saw was the desk plate of Capt. John Lisack, his old friend who had been wounded in an enemy bombing raid while Sgt. Grimm's 37 missions had left him only with a case of nerves.

Mrs. Grimm, now residing with Sgt. Grimm in Zeigler Pl., Warner Robins apartments, was the former Mildred Stensby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stensby, 3340 Riverside, Calif. She is an employee of the WRASC payroll section.

Two of his three brothers now in the Army and one sister, Mrs. George Coldren, 1817 17th Ave., are Columbus residents. His uncle, John Grimm, is a member of the Columbus police department.

His father is employed by the State Highway Department here.

Record-Herald Arranges to Print Baby Pictures

ARRANGEMENTS MADE TO HAVE PHOTOS TAKEN

No Obligation Imposed on Parents; May Buy Pictures
If They Want Them

The Record-Herald wants a picture of every baby girl or boy in this trade territory so it can have a cut made and the picture published in this paper. To be certain it is a late picture and a good one, that will portray your baby just as it is now, arrangements have been made with the Woltz Studios—of Des Moines, to come to Washington C. H. July 20 and 21, and take these pictures free of charge.

The studio will be set up in the Record-Herald Building and open to take these pictures from 10 A. M. until 8 P. M. On this date a representative of the studio will be here with all the necessary studio equipment, ready for taking pictures of the youngsters. You don't have to be a subscriber to the Record-Herald and it is not compulsory that you buy any pictures of your baby after they are taken.

However, the opportunity to buy pictures will be given if they wish—it is entirely up to the parents.

The Record-Herald management has long been interested in presenting pictures of men and women in service along with any others of local interest, and at this time is endeavoring to obtain pictures of local children for publication later on.

This plan should be especially interesting to wives of service men in foreign areas who wish to send a picture of the baby but who fear that the picture might be lost in the mails. Hundreds of Record-Heralds are mailed regularly to men and women in the service who will certainly appreciate seeing pictures of their own children in the home-town paper.

There is no age limit, however, all children must be accompanied by their parent.

All-Star Game Major Topic As Big League Holiday Ends

(By the Associated Press)
With the three-day vacation over, the major league swings back into the second half of the season today as 14 clubs summon their second wind in determined efforts to overhaul the high flying Cardinals and Browns of St. Louis.

The All-Star game last Tuesday night and the interesting highlights emanating from it still are the main topic of discussion among the baseball folk.

—Spying— On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, July 13.—(P)—Overseas Sports Roundup:

Touchdown at Salpan
Marine Lieut. Joe Sabasteanski, who played center for Fordham in the 1942 Sugar Bowl game, got his first combat experience at Salpan when he was called upon to help stem a threatened Japanese counterattack after a week on the beach, supervising the unloading of supplies. "I'd rather play six 60-minute football games on one day than go through another session of shelling like the one we had," he commented. In the same vicinity were Corp. Calvin (Preacher) Dorsett, ex-Cleveland Indian pitcher, and Pfc. Jim Bivins, who used to hurl for the Pirates and Phillies. Before the landing, they had pitched their respective Marine teams to divisional championships.

Indolent India
Note from Sgt. John Derr, former Greensboro, N. C., sports editor now in India: "Guess I'm having the most fun ever out here, although this hot weather has put a damper on my golf and tennis. We play after 6 P. M., usually about 14 holes. Last week I turned in my best card, an 80 on the par 74 course. And to think that back in Greensboro I never was able to break 90 and cussed many times about shooting a 100. I've been getting a few rebuilt balls from the states and also some rationed ones out here. They've put control prices on new balls now, cutting the tariff from about $6 to a little more than a buck. The course is as barked as a concrete road now, and if one can manage to keep his ball straight and low it'll run a mile."

Another Climate
From Lieut. Dave Zinkoff (on stationery of the Ale & Quail Officers Club—London): "Ens. Larry Howell, 440 flash from Ohio State, was upped to Lt. (JG) here recently and to now back in the states. Red Cross opened two bowling alleys, built by the engineers. Major Gen. William S. Key rolled in alley 1 after dedicating the alleys. Ko'd seven pins with his first roll then watched Brig. Gen. Early Duncan toss one, good for one pin, and another for two more. So Key refused to roll his second ball."

Back to the Pacific
From T-Sgt. Billy Goodrich, ex-Brooklyn Eagle sports writer: "I've discovered that once the boys can get a big enough field to play, they will drop softball and go back to the national pastime. The men like that hard ball stuff. The lads sure went for the 'iron major' and the more good football pictures the better."

Stampede Tournament Is Won by Chick Evans

CHICAGO, July 13.—(P)—Charles (Chick) Evans, whose golfing victories date way back when, added another one to his long list yesterday.

The veteran Chicago amateur, who will be 54 years old July 18, held a birthday celebration by winning the 20th annual Stampede Tournament. He shot a 27-hole score of 39-39-38—116 to top the field of 175.

Baksi and Williams Tops In New Rating for Boxers

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(P)—Joe Baksi of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and Ike Williams of Trenton, N. J., advanced to the select class among the heavyweights and lightweights, respectively, in new quarterly ratings announced today by the National Boxing Association.

Baksi, who recently defeated Lee Savold, now in the Maritime Service, took over the top position in the "outstanding boxers" listings, ranking behind Champion Joe Louis and challengers, Billy Conn and Jimmy Bivins.

Williams moved up to the "logical contender" category in the lightweight division, following Champion Juan Zurita of Mexico and challengers, Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia and Beau Jack of the army in the NBA ratings.

President Abe J. Greene of the NBA pointed out there were few reopening the Burma-Ledo Road.

The Japanese have withdrawn from Pyindaw in northern Burma after a one-day attack from the east by Nigerian troops supported by mortar fire laid down by Chinese forces coming from Mogaung, eight miles to the northeast.

British troops hunted down disorganized bands of Japanese troops forced to abandon their invasion of India.

Tokyo, alarmed at the "acute situation that has developed" out of the B-29 air raids, order a speed-up in production of "air defense fire engines."

The Berlin radio said Vice Adm. Kichii Hasegawa of the Japanese navy had been killed in action.

Methodists Win, 4 to 2, From API

The Methodists let a shower of rain and six innings pass before they collected four runs to defeat the API 4-2 in the first game of a doubleheader at Wilson Field.

Chase and Petty each gave up only six hits, but the Churchmen bunched three in the sixth to score their four runs and the ball game. Chase fanned 11 Methodist batsmen.

Shaw of the Methodists led the hitting with three bingles for three trips to the plate.

For the nightcap game, Co. D didn't have a sufficient number of players and the Eagles, instead of taking a forfeit, agreed to play the game at a later date. The uncertain weather was the reason the soldiers did not turn up.

Thursday night the API War-workers will meet the statistical control section of Patterson Field.

major changes in the quarterly ratings because most of the "name" fighters now are in the armed forces.

Greene said the NBA intends to stick to its policy of "freezing" the titles of champions now in military garb and has no intention of according "duration" recognition to civilian pugilists.

Among the titleholders now in the armed forces are Louis, in the Army; light heavyweight, Gus Lesnevich, of the Coast Guard; middleweight, Tony Zale and welterweight, Freddie Cochran of the Navy and featherweight, Sal Bartola of the Maritime Service.

Boxers from outside the United States were accorded more recognition than usual. Freddie Mills of England was given the third spot among the light heavyweights, Jose Basora of Puerto Rico was listed as a middleweight contender, Marcel Cerdan of France advanced in the welterweight listings, and English boxers made a clean sweep in the flyweight class.

MUCH BUSINESS TRANSACTION BY CITY COUNCIL

New Heating Rates Adopted
And Budget for The Year Approved

City Council, with all members present Wednesday night, took up several matters of business and disposed of them after short discussion.

An ordinance to fix central heating fees at 33 cents, the original price, which had been presented at the previous meeting, was taken up and adopted under suspension of the rules.

It provides for 33 cents per square foot of radiation instead of 30 cents, and it was explained by representatives of the company that the increase to the former rate is necessary to help meet part of the increased costs. It was also stated that the rates as newly fixed are still one cent under the lowest rates in the U. S.

The annual budget was presented by City Manager Walter L. Stambaugh, who explained it and read a large part of it.

He stated that the budget calls for practically the same amount as that of last year, and that the income will be nearly the same as far as it can be ascertained. The budget was adopted.

Stambaugh also made his report to council, stating that repairs on broken manholes of the intercepting sewer had been made and that as a result pumpage at the disposal plant had dropped materially. It had been estimated that up to 1,000,000 gallons of water had flowed daily into the sewer from the breaks.

He also stated that the gas engine installed to operate the pumps was being powered with sludge gas and that as a result the electrical bill for power is being reduced.

Stambaugh also said that two-thirds of the street oiling had been done, and that catchbasins had again been oiled to help keep the mosquitoes at a minimum.

Judge R. H. Sites reported $502.10 collected during June, from 38 city cases and one state case. Total he collected for the six months was given as $3,335.58 in fines, fees and forfeitures.

Request of the board of trustees of the Police Relief Fund for .01 of a mill for operating expenses was granted. The budget for the Police Pension Fund is $790.

Other matters were discussed briefly but no action taken.

Baltic Sea and Riga, was feeling increasing pressure of two huge approaching Russian armies. Already its garrison was like the one surrounded in Wilno in Lithuania, bracing for the coming blow.

The newest disaster to befall the Germans was Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko's offensive against the Latvian republic, which in its first two days gobbled up more than 1,000 villages in a break-through which front dispatches said now was 100 miles wide and 25 miles deep north of Gen. Ivan Bagration's First Baltic Army.

A Moscow communique said more than 7,000 Germans were killed and about 1,500 taken prisoner in a single day's fighting on the new sector.

Front dispatches pictured this latest offensive as well under way and said the Germans were falling back pell-mell.

Prelude to Withdrawal

(The Berlin radio, apparently preparing the German people for news of a large-scale withdrawal along the entire eastern front, said: "It is obvious that the front cannot remain as it is. There are two alternatives. One is a large scale counter-offensive and the other the adoption of the entire front to new lines. Since we are on the defensive in the east, the second alternative is the one to be applied.")

From Wilno itself a correspondent for Red Star reported the capture of the postoffice.

"The captives testify that the soldiers wanted to surrender, but were prevented by Storm Troopers who threatened to kill any who did," he wrote. "They shot many of who sought to give up, despite the risk."

The dispatch said the dropping of Nazi parachutists in groups of 500 to 300 continued. The Russians shot many of them out of

47 BURIALS IN THREE MONTHS

Quarterly Report Is Made on Cemetery

During the three months, ending July 1, there were 47 burials made in the Washington C. H. Cemetery, the number being somewhat larger than usual.

This was disclosed in the quarterly report submitted at a joint session of the Union Township Trustees and City Council, Wednesday night, by Supt. Vert Baughn.

The report showed a balance of $3,745.03 on hand April 1, receipts of $3,962.92 and expenses of $3,590.82, leaving a balance of $4,117.13 on July 1.

The report was accepted and placed on file. No other business was transacted at the meeting.

WAR LOAN TOTAL NOW $790,585.50

Federal Reserve Figures Are Based on July 11 Record

The county's Fifth War Loan total today was boosted to $790,585.50, according to the Federal Reserve Bank's figures based on records of July 11, F. E. Hill, general chairman of the War Finance Committee, here, said today.

With payroll deductions and further purchases of E, F, and G bonds throughout the rest of July, a few more thousand dollars are expected to be added to the total, Hill said. Altogether, $160,000 remains if the quota is to be reached by July 28, the last day on which purchases will count, he said.

SGT. DARLINGTON GETS AIR MEDAL AT INDIAN BASE

Flies Over Dangerous 'Hump'
Route Over Himalays
Into Free China

T-Sgt. George N. Darlington, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Darlington, 742 Washington Avenue, has been awarded the Air Medal "for meritorious achievement" it has been announced by Brigadier General Thomas O. Hardin, commanding the India-China Wing of the Air Transport Command.

He received the coveted award, says the citation, for "participation in more than 150 hours of operational flight over the dangerous and difficult Assam-China air routes, where enemy interception and attack were probable and expected." These routes lead across the formidable "hump" of the Himalayas and for some time have formed virtually the only lifeline of military supply to Free China.

Sgt. Darlington also holds the presidential citation, Mrs. Darlington said. She believes he has made more than 42 trips over the hazardous "hump," known as one of the most grueling air journeys any airmen are making throughout the scattered war fronts. Her son is crew chief of a four motored plane—just which type Mrs. Darlington isn't sure.

Sgt. Darlington has been overseas for 14 months. He entered the service in September, 1941. Soon to be 28 years old, Sgt. Darlington was employed at the Producers Live Stock Co-op before entering the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Darlington haven't heard from their son since June 16. "I guess he has been busy," Mrs. Darlington said as she commented it was "very unusual" for so long a time to lapse between letters from her son.

MURRAY TAKES PART IN STATE MEETING

His Panel Reveals 2,000
Teacher Shortage

Ohio lacks almost 2,000 teachers for the coming school year and rural areas, in which about 70 percent of the shortage is concentrated, face an emergency, the Ohio School Administrators' Institute at Ohio State University was told Wednesday.

A. B. Murray, superintendent of schools here, Wednesday afternoon participated in a panel discussion Wednesday afternoon on the subject: "What shortage in teachers, janitors, bus drivers and other school employees will probably exist in Ohio next year and what feasible steps can be taken to meet the shortage?"

Equalization of salaries of elementary and high school teachers with the same amount of training was advocated by Carl H. Shanks, Clinton County superintendent, as one means of attracting teachers back to schools from industry. High school teachers currently receive about $300 a year more than elementary teachers, Shanks said.

CLINTON DRAFT BOARD RESIGNS

Four New Members Refuse To Serve on Board

Four more Clinton County residents who were notified Wednesday by the state draft headquarters that they had been appointed by the President as members of the new Selective Service Board for Clinton County, have declined to serve, it became known Thursday.

Joe Beam, Port William grain elevator operator and farmer, said he had mailed his papers back, declining to serve and L. E. Stauffer, farm implement manager also said he would not serve.

Reports state that E. J. McMillan, farmer, and Orville Ellis, farmer, would not serve. The naming of the four men exhausted the list of 14 men nominated by the local committee to succeed the original board, which resigned May 17. Two groups of five men have been appointed and declined to serve.

Alleged lack of proper cooperation on the part of some of the higher officials is said to have been responsible for the original board resigning in a body.

RAY MAYNARD IS APPOINTED TO DRAFT BOARD

Fills Place Made When J. M.
Willis Resigned, Effective
June 29

Ray Maynard today is a member of the Fayette County Selective Service Board. He is filling the vacancy created by the resignation of J. M. Willis, chairman. Maynard is not, however, chairman of the board.

The appointment, made by President Franklin D. Roosevelt upon the recommendation of Governor John W. Bricker, reached here Wednesday afternoon. Maynard has accepted the appointment.

The complete board is now Howard Fogle, chairman; Arch O. Riber, Dr. S. B. Smith, L. W. Hays and Maynard.

Willis' resignation was effective June 29—a resignation which ended three years and seven months of service as chairman of the selective service board for World War II. Willis served three and one-half years as chairman of the selective service board during the first World War. He resigned because of his health.

Maynard is head of the men's department of Craig's Department Store.

CAP RECEIVES TRIPLE ENGINE INSTRUCTION

Movie on Military Discipline To Be Shown Next Week

Civil Air Patrol class members here are getting three times as much airplane engine instruction as any other group in this area. Lt. B. P. Finkbone, CAP officer from Middletown, told the flight here Wednesday night.

Lt. Finkbone said the equipment in WHS's airplane mechanics shop plus Instructor Arthur Engle warranted the amount of instruction which the class here will receive.

A brief outline of the history of CAP, how it was organized six days before Pearl Harbor and first came into prominence through coastal patrol duties in the lecture hour; an hour of military drill under the tutelage of Captain Charles Virgil Sexton, commanding officer of the State Guard unit here, in the gymnasium and a more detailed study of the

EXPANSION COMING IN AIRMAIL SERVICE

But No New Developments
For Proposed Line Here

Although airmail pickup service for 28 Ohio Valley communities on an already functioning route will be doubled beginning next Monday, the service here does not appear imminent, Postmaster Emmett Passmore said today.

The proposed pick-up route, which includes Washington C. H., would start at Pittsburgh and end at Cincinnati, he pointed out, while the route on which more pickups are to be scheduled runs from Pittsburgh to Huntington, W. Va.

G. W. Power, chief traffic analyst of the All American Aviation, Inc., came here several months ago to investigate the possibility of installing a pick-up station. Zanesville and Lancaster would be other key stops on the route.

MAN'S LEG IS BROKEN WHILE IN WAGON BED

Oliver Murphy Stays in Wagon
As Horses Run Away

Oliver Murphy of the Lees Creek Community is today nursing a broken leg, a fractured thumb and other minor injuries suffered in a wagon bed.

Murphy was driving a team of horses during the threshing time on his farm when the team broke away and ran off. The wagon-bed came loose and fell from the runaway horses. Although he stayed in the wagon-bed, the jarring jolt fractured his leg and thumb.

He was taken at once to Mt. Carmel Hospital in Columbus where his leg was set.

DRY WEATHER PROVIDES ONE COMPENSATION

Mosquitoes Fewer in County
Than For Past Years;
Sanitarian Says

The dry spell has had one compensation—maybe you've already noticed it but in case you haven't, Dr. William Bolton, county sanitarian, said Wednesday afternoon there are fewer mosquitoes buzzing around Washington C. H. than for the past six or seven years.

No rainfall meant no standing pools for breeding mosquito larvae. And besides, Dr. Bolton said, the city's mosquito "war" got the source of breeding at the right time.

Paint Creek, usually one of the chief sources of mosquito breeding here, is clean this year. "There aren't any breeding pools at the sides," Dr. Bolton said. He added there are "plenty of fish" in the creek as well—those fish may have eaten the larvae before they had a chance to become pesky, full-grown mosquitoes.

The rains here during the past two days may make breeding pools, and Dr. Bolton intimated it would be well to inspect backyards and alleyways to make sure no open pools are there to bring on a fall "crop" of mosquitoes.
